

Girl Swaps Leg for Chance at Life

Birmingham, Ala., May 17 — Betty Ruth Millam of Gadsden, Ala., a smiling, brown-eyed girl, swapped her left leg for a chance at life and is happy over the exchange.

The 17-year-old high school senior passed through here today en route to her home after three weeks at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Her left leg was amputated above the knee to prevent the spreading of a bone cancer and to save her life.

The vivacious girl doesn't mind living life with only one leg. And she said she does not intend to let the amputation interfere with her romance.

"I have a lot to be thankful for," she smiled. "Why just think, before long, I'll have one of those artificial legs. They make them now, you know, almost as good as the natural ones."

She was anxious to get back to Gadsden among her friends, her brothers, Wayne and Richard, and she shyly admitted to another fellow named Jimmy. That was all she would tell about her romance, except that he's a "good looking guy," 21 years old and a navy veteran.

Jimmy wrote her while she was at Mayo Clinic and her parents spent the entire time there. "That made it easy," she said.

Betty was one of the most popular students in the senior class at Gadsden High when she was stricken with the bone tumor five months ago. Her case became an emergency last month and she was taken to a national guard plane to Rochester.

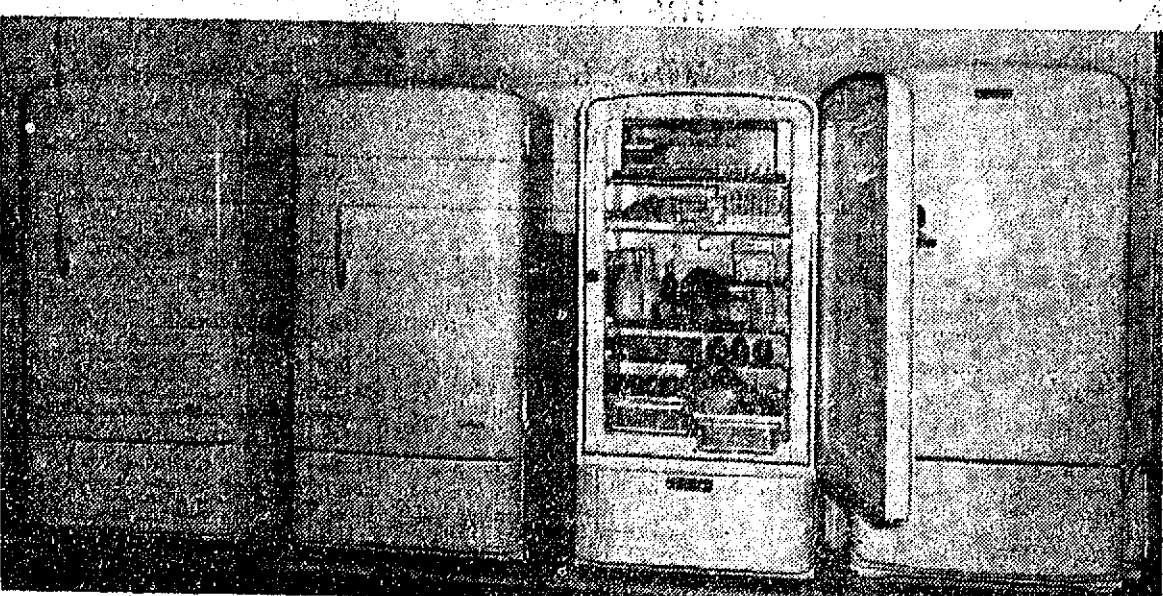

She had hoped that physicians at the famed medical center could treat the tumor and avoid an amputation. But to save her life, they told her, they would have to operate.

"I'll intend to keep smiling because I've got nothing to frown about," she said as she left for Gadsden and a reception at home.

Siamese Twins Given Chance to Live

Los Angeles, May 17 — (P)—Little Siamese twin girls, born Saturday, are given a good chance to live today, although joined at the head, top-to-top.

The infants were born to Mrs. John B. Jones, 35, a Negro. Only a few similar cases have been reported.

Physicians say the babies are doing well and have a good chance to survive. Dr. Phoebus Berman, hospital medical director, said a study will be made to determine if it would be possible to separate the twins by surgery.

However, he conceded such an operation would be "drastic" because the cranial juncture is extensive. However, the fact that one child faces in a slightly different direction from the other, the doctor explained, indicates each infant has a separate brain.

But presumably, he added, there is "some connection" between the two brains. Each child responds individually to stimuli. One will cry while the other sleeps.

Service commission to authorize a proposed expansion of capital structure.

In its application yesterday the company said it planned to spend $8,250,000 for new construction and improvements to its system this year and in 1950 and 1951.

The company would sell $3,150,000 of interim notes, issue $5,500,000 of bonds, 70,000 shares of $25 par value preferred stock and 150 shares of $5 par value common stock.

Lehman Auto and Home Supply, 508 S. Main, has just received a new shipment of Gibson refrigerators, one of the oldest in the business.

In fact the company has been in business since 1877 and this 72 years of experience assures the home the best in refrigeration.

This new shipment contains all sizes and models that feature the single dial control, crystal-clear doors, easy-clean panels, ice cube reserve, door sealer and latch, spill-saved shelf, adjustable shelves and many other advantages added through the years.

The exterior is built from modern design that adds to the beauty of the kitchen. The mechanism is strong and steady and guaranteed. The interior is designed so that every feature is utilized and the insulation keeps the heat out and holds the cold in.

ISLAND OF ESCAPE

By Hugh Lawrence Nelson

The Story: Fred Sillwell, small movie producer, and three members of his company are shipwrecked on Spicard Island, where Henry Gough Harding is testing four women candidates for worth to become his bride and found a "New Eden" on the isle. Learning that one of the candidates, Lilly Warren, has been stealing liquor for Sillwell, Harding sends his store by his funicular railway to the storehouse at beach level. Bea Cosgrove, riding in the car, sees Lilly in the car approaching her. Lilly is dead, shot through the head and in her lap is the automatic pistol Bea had smuggled onto the isle. On the sand of the beach is a single footprint, immediately destroyed by a wave.

The noon sun was hot on the assembled Spicard Islanders. On the flat top of the veranda rail, Mabel sat with her arm around Mollie Stark's shoulders. Agnes and Nona McGuire whispered to each other. George Bascombe and Fred Sillwell stared straight ahead without apparent consciousness of their surroundings.

At a table brought from the main room for the occasion, Harding wrote on a single sheet of paper, while Bea Cosgrove sharpened a pencil in preparation for duty as official Spicard Island court stenographer.

He finished his notes, looked up to face the row of people before him. He rapped gently on the table with a claw hammer from the toolroom. "Spicard Island Court is now in session," he intoned.

Bea poised her pencil over the blank notebook. The words transcribed in his sunny veranda into dingy, well remembered courtrooms.

"We are here," Harding went on, "to inquire into the death of Mrs. Lilly Warren. By force of circumstances, the proceedings and subsequent burial of the deceased must be expedited. This court, though informal, will be completely impartial in considering the facts. All present will consider themselves the jury. Now then, do any of you know anything of this unfortunate occurrence?"

Miss Cosgrove finished writing. She looked up at the silent row. Their blank faces, their expectant waiting, told of their unwillingness to venture into words until a pattern became clear.

Mollie Stark began crying. The clinging black of the dress she wore outlined the convulsive movements of her body. "I didn't do anything bad," she whimpered. "I don't want to be put on any old jury."

"There, there," Harding soothed, abandoning his official tone of voice. "We all know you wouldn't do anything bad."

"Oh brother," Nona murmured.

Harding heard, scowled, pounded the table with his hammer. "I'll have order in this court!"

"I'm a good girl," Mollie recited through her sobs. "I'm a good girl."

"If you'd just tell us in your own words," Harding said kindly. "Tell us what you know of this happening."

Mollie looked at Sillwell, then shook her head. "But Mollie doesn't know anything," she insisted.

Nona winked at Miss Cosgrove. "Thank you," Henry Harding said. "Mrs. Jones, will you take Miss Stark in the house? Perhaps she can get a little rest while we continue."

"Of course," Mabel said. "Come, child."

Mollie clung to her, was led away lumping.

"We will wait Mrs. Jones's return," Harding decided.

"How much of that conversation do you want in the record?" Bea asked.

Harding frowned. "Put down that when questioned Miss Stark had no knowledge of the occurrence."

Miss Cosgrove crossed out several lines, wrote the sentence as dictated.

Nona McGuire kicked her heels against the stone. She whispered something to Agnes. Miss Firth giggled. Harding ignored them until Mrs. Jones returned.

"She went right to sleep like a sweet child," the woman said.

Harding beamed at her. He looked down at the paper before him, cleared his throat harshly, banged on the table. "We will now proceed. I have examined the body carefully and I would judge Mrs. Warren met her death between eight and nine o'clock. For the record, I must ask where each of you were during that hour."

Sillwell stared as if trying to find a meaning behind the words. "All right. The last time I saw Mrs. Warren was when she flounced into the kitchen. That was just after you left the table."

"Did anyone see her after that?" There were only negatives.

"That was about seven-thirty," Harding said. "It would give her plenty of time to make the 15-minute trip down to the dock by way of the trail."

"Why should she go?" Fred asked.

Harding showed his resentment at the question, but he answered. "Mrs. Warren knew of my decision to send the whiskey to the lower storeroom where it would not be so accessible. She knew Miss Cosgrove would go for the day's supplies at once so she would be discovered. I noticed there was an empty whiskey bottle in the kitchen. I am sure you all noticed her extreme intoxication. I offer as a suggestion she might have gone down to wait for the whiskey."

"I'll buy that," Sillwell said. "It's the sort of thing that'd seem like a good idea to a drunk."

"An expert opinion?" Nona asked sweetly.

"It takes 15 minutes to get down," Bascombe put in. "It'd take longer for anyone to come up. That should make it easier to check."

Harding pounded furiously. "I am unaware of asking for an open discussion. For the present, limit yourselves to answering questions as to your whereabouts."

the moment, of how many dollars they have in relation to what they need and Mr. Truman reported on that in these words:

"Measured against the program of the organization for European Economic Cooperation (Europe's own top recovery committee) for July 1948 to June 1949 progress by the end of December was satisfactory."

"Realization of production and trade goals for the fiscal year (which ends June 30) is virtually assured and substantial improvement in Western Europe's external position may be anticipated."

"The total gold and dollar deficit of the ERF (European Recovery Program) countries on capital and current accounts in the fiscal year 1948-49 is estimated at $5,500,000,000—30 per cent less than the 1947 deficit of $7,800,000,000."

"The president said that in only a few countries was the pace of the first phase of recovery lagging slightly. Yet he declared the second phase—attainment of maximum production necessary to economic independence—has 'barely started,' and before it ends Western Europe must boost output 'far above the prewar level.'"

"In 1947," the president's report said, "the participating countries as a group were able to pay for less than 4 per cent of their imports from the outside world (most of which cost dollars), but according to the ERF program they expect to finance about half from their own earnings in the current fiscal year."

"Thus they still have far to go before attaining a balanced position in their foreign accounts. To win the balance, the report declared, they must give special attention to 'the modernization of exports to suit the needs of new markets, the development of overseas territories, the reduction of trade barriers, and the exploitation of Europe's attractions as a tourist center.'"

"It is because these basic changes in the economics of western Europe can be accomplished only gradually," Mr. Truman said, "that American aid is an essential part of the European Recovery Program."

Adams Says Sand Wireworms Can Be Controlled

Sand wireworms, which caused damage to corn and other row crops last May and June, can be controlled by a program of rotation, cover crops and manuring.

County Agent Oliver L. Adams said yesterday that growing a broadcast crop for one year will rid a field of these worms. Adult worms lay eggs only in cultivated soil. Corn or some other row crop can then be grown without fear of wireworm damage.

But if fields are row cropped, they soon become reinfested. Therefore, after one, possibly two years in row crops, land should be sown to a broadcast crop for a year or two.

Cover crops and manure raise the moisture-holding capacity of soil, thus drowning the worms, Mr. Adams pointed out. Furthermore, this increased moisture-holding capacity enables injured plants to recover quicker.

U. S. forecasters said that while the Dakotas rains were spotty, they were in substantial amounts. There were also scattered showers in the Plains, the Rockies and in Texas and Oklahoma.

East of the Mississippi, except for isolated rains, was dry. Temperatures stayed in their range of the past few days.

The outlook, the forecasters said, was for more of the same, with a cooling trend spreading southward from the Dakotas.

DOROTHY DIX

Sacrificed to Sister

Dear Miss Dix: I am a girl in my late teens and my problem is this: My mother will not let me go out on dates with boys because as my older sister has never had any dates, Mom thinks that I should never have any. She thinks it would be disloyal for me to have boy friends and to go about and have good times, but goodness knows it isn't my fault that the boys run after me and run away from sister, and it wouldn't help her a bit if I sat back and sucked my thumbs too, instead of stepping out.

But the trouble is that Mother's refusing to let me have any of the fun that belongs to my time of life is forcing me to be a liar and a cheat that takes the cream off my pleasure. I have to be sly and deceitful. I can't ask my boy friends to the house, I have to fib about where I have been and what I have done, and I hate it.

What can I do to make Mother see that she is spoiling my youth and that she is making two old maids instead of one?

TEEN-AGED

Answer: There isn't much chance of your ever being able to open your mother's eyes to the folly she is committing in denying you the pleasures of girlhood because Nature didn't put the come-hither look in your sister's eyes, for it is just about as easy to move a mountain as it is to get a mother to alter her rules for a girl's conduct.

Losses Chance
So if Mother thinks that a young girl should be kept in the background until an older daughter gets married, that's the way it is. Many a pretty young girl loses her chance of making a good marriage by being sacrificed to a homely elder sister.

Also, many a mother is responsible for her daughter going astray because she tries to force a perpetual babyhood on her and denies her the privileges and the freedom to which she is entitled. Little Annie doesn't want to stay little Annie. She grows up. And if she can't tell Mother what she does and where she goes, God help them both!

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a girl of 19, in love with a boy of 22 and we plan to marry. My fiancé drinks. On Friday night, which is his night out with the boys, they sit in a tavern and drink all night. I object to this strongly, but was inclined to let it slide until I got to thinking about the future. Just recently he told me that I should expect a hard time when we marry because he is going to do just as he pleases.

I know what I want in married life, and I certainly will not bring children into the world if they are to have a drunken father. How do you think I should go about making my point clear to him?

TROUBLED
Answer: The shoe is on the other foot. It is your boy friend who is making his point clear to you, and if you refuse to take the tip that he is giving you about what will happen to you if you marry him, you will inevitably come to you. But there is no other one thing in the world so tragic, and so strange, as that intelligent women know perfectly well what sort of fate they are letting themselves in for if they marry drunkards, or philanderers, or ne'er-do-wells, or tyrants, and yet they do it. There isn't a day that I don't get letters from girls saying that their sweethearts beat them, or they are libertines who are unfaithful to them, or that they are lazy loafers who graft their living off their hard-working fiancées. Yet these girls, whose Guardian Angels have shrieked warning after warning to them, go on and marry the men who will bring them nothing but misery.

This cad whom you are thinking of marrying is giving you a chance to save yourself. He tips you off to what you can expect. He tells you that he is going to drink as much as he wants; that he is going to do as he pleases and that marriage with him will be a tough road to travel. Unless you are qualifying for martyrdom don't marry this type of man.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a divorced woman with seven children whose ages run from 12 to three years. I am in love with a man whom I want to marry, but who will not marry me unless I put the children in some sort of an institution. At present I get $22.50 week from the children's father and an $80 pension from a society, which, of course, I will have to give up if I marry this man.

What do you advise me to do?

L. K.
Answer: A mother's duty is to the children. Any woman with seven children to rear should be through with love-making and philandering. It will take all her time and effort to bring the youngsters up to be decent men and women.

Sutton Club Revival Starts on May 21

ture was virtually unchanged. U. S. forecasters said that while the Dakotas rains were spotty, they were in substantial amounts. There were also scattered showers in the Plains, the Rockies and in Texas and Oklahoma.

Mills Has

'Painless' Tax Plan

Washington, May 17 — (AP) — A "painless" $5,000,000,000 boost in the government revenues that would balance its books for the next fiscal year, was proposed today by Rep. Mills (D-Ark). It would require corporations to pay all their 1949 taxes six months earlier than usual.

After consultation with Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, Mills announced he is whipping his proposal into legislation that would have this effect:

1. Erase the prospect of any new taxes or any increases in tax rates. It would shelve the $4,000,000,000 general increase in taxes President Truman has requested. It would have no effect whatever on individual income taxes.

2. Turn a prospective $3,000,000,000 federal deficit into a $1,700,000,000 surplus in fiscal 1950 (the year beginning next July 1), for retirement of a part of the $251,60,000,000 federal debt.

But this bookkeeping method of budget-balancing would not increase the long run total of taxes to be collected by the government. It would pile into a six months period the collections of corporation taxes now due over a 12 months period.

Mills, who prepared his bill for presentation in the house today, said it would work like this:

Recorded corporations working on a calendar year basis, and also estates, trusts and non-resident aliens, to pay all their 1949 federal taxes before July 1, 1950 — in two installments. Present law gives these taxpayers 12 months — until December, 1950 — to complete payment of the 1949 taxes in four installments.

Mills' bill would shorten this 12 months deferred payment period to six months. Thus, approximately $4,800,000,000 that would be collected from corporations between July 1, 1950 and December 31, 1950 would be brought into the treasury by June 30, 1950 — increasing by that amount the tax collections within the July 1, 1949-July 1, 1950 federal fiscal bookkeeping year, in which congressional experts now are predicting a $3,000,000,000 deficit.

She stroked my hair; she held my hand. The lights were dim and low. She raised her eyes with sweet surprise, And softly whispered, "No".

White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

And wrapping it all up in one stunningly beautiful picture of top-drawer, travel-in-modern styling in the good Buick manner — sleek lines, bright chrome, the instant identification of gleaming Ventiports.

Here's five-feet-plus of deep-seated comfort — an outlook that brings the whole landscape indoors — handsome lines that draw admiring glances anywhere — what else is needed to settle your mind on this one?

Two things, probably. A little spin with yourself behind the wheel just to take this honey's measure. A look at the price tags and a bit of mental comparisons just to prove how big a buy it is.

For both you have only to see your Buick dealer — who will be pleased to demonstrate, pleased to talk price — and pleased to take your order for surprisingly early delivery.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., is a candidate for this post in congress which became vacant at the death of Sol Bloom. This district lies on the upper West Side of New York, embracing the joss-house of the Roerich cult in which Bubblehead Waage was implicated. Bloom had a rent-free apartment in the Lamassery, which was a combination of hotel-apartment house, voodoo joint, art gallery and political headquarters.

Sol was an old-time sideshow professor, prizefight manager and long publisher of the cake-walk and ragtime phase of the musical depravity. Upon his death it was recalled that his earlier songs had included several historic numbers whose titles and lyrics made game of the social depression and the aspirations of Negroes. There was no malice in this, of course, for that was the humor of the period about 1900. But it was a political tragedy that no Republican rival had ever come upon this knowledge while it was alive to dam him as a mocker of a racial minority.

Sol said he could not remember whether he paid rent for his quarters in the joss-house, but an intimate member of the cult said he paid nothing and that the reason for putting him on the free list was obvious one. In his sideshow career he was the entrepreneur of Little Egypt, the original hooker, kootchie dancer of the streets of Cairo of the Chicago World Fair of 1893. Little Egypt was a stock or trade name which presently applied to a number of kootchie ways under the management of Mr. Bloom. He was a very cultural fellow in his way.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., is not a resident of the district. George Sokolsky, the noted cosmologist, does live in the district and he reports that F. D. J. actually resides in another district "on the other side of town where the rich live." This phrase sounds to me as though Mr. Sokolsky were trying to smear Mr. Roosevelt with the sin of wealth. If so, the young man would have to be just a model in the fact that he was just a model rich by inheritance and stinking rich only by marriage to a daughter of the house of Du Pont, the well-known merchants of death, of Wilmington, Delaware.

That marriage was regarded as a sort of Montague-Capulet or Hatfield-McCoy alliance when the two were wed and there was, naturally, considerable speculation as to how long it would last although I do not recall that anyone laid any prices or made any bets on the proposition. For a Roosevelt marriage it had a good run until recently when dispatches from Reno reported that the lady had gone into residence there. They had behaved better than most Roosevelts except time, the one spectacular exception being a ticket for wild driving in the small hours of a big night on Long Island. For a while, young Mr. Roosevelt seemed determined to ignore and defy the summons, but he finally came in and the thing was smoothed around.

Mr. Sokolsky writes that the district is essentially middle-class and "mostly of Jewish and Irish ancestry" and his opinion is that the Democrat, or William H. McHenry, the Republican, would represent the people very well. I think so too. Judge Shalleck nudged Roosevelt out of the regular nomination. Being denied the Democratic nod, Roosevelt then was nominated by David Dubinsky as the candidate of the so-called Liberal party, which Dubinsky runs as a political annex of the international ladies garment workers union. But in this case he points out that neither Dubinsky nor his candidate resides in the district. And he says that most of the inhabitants think of Dave as a labor leader, not as a politician handing out nominations. Mr. Sokolsky is acting confused here because Dubinsky practically owns the so-called Liberal party, runs it as a political arm of his union, and regularly hands out nominations.

Not only the residents of the district but politicians everywhere were surprised when young Roosevelt discovered, or someone discovered for him, that a candidate for a congressional seat need not reside within the district. In England, yes. But nobody had discovered that in this country.

Among those who have endorsed young F. D. R.'s candidacy is Benjamin Pross, the old jail-bird, swindler, racketeer and bankrupt. He runs charity rackets for his own glorification at the annual grand testimonial banquet given in his honor by one of his A. F. of L. unions. The third annual stench was given last March 7 at Essex House, New York. About 500 of the most prominent booze racketeers were there at a plate to honor the distinguished thief, gorilla and shakedown specialist.

The accounts in the racketeer papers of the booze trades said that the distinguished guests included Edward Corsi, the industrial commissioner of the state of New York, by appointment of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. One of the booze papers said that Corsi made a speech in which he gave glory to the union leadership such as Pross had shown made it possible for New York state to lead all others in industrial peace.

In 1947 and 1948 Pross gave himself grand testimonial banquets on a promise to give generously to the cancer fund and other charities. But the contribution to the cancer fund was only $100 on one occasion and Pross bashfully refused to say what the other contributions were. Pross now has sent a personal union memorandum to all his subjects, at their own expense, urging them to vote for F. D. R. Jr.

Odd Turns Feature Big League Play

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The month-old baseball season has been packed with odd turns and unexpected happenings, but one piece of script remains unchanged from last year. The managers are having a trying time of it.

Last season was known as the "year of the axe" because no fewer than six big league pitchers knelt with bowed heads before the chopping block. This season is rapidly becoming known as the "year of the blow-up" for the harried skipper.

Burt Shotton of Brooklyn and Joe McCarthy of the Boston Red Sox, Boston, Shotton really exploded Sunday. He ripped into his players with a tongue-lashing the likes of which they had not heard since the departure of Leo Durocher.

McCarthy's explosion came yesterday, but his tirade was directed at the umpires. It came about after the final out was made in the Washington-Boston game, won by the Red Sox.

Plate umpire Joe Paparella had just ruled that the final out was made before the potential tying run had crossed the plate. This brought McCarthy and the entire Boston team out on the diamond, protesting that Tom O'Brien had crossed the plate before Lou Stringer was tagged after round second on pinch hitter Sam Mele's single. After considerable wrangling, Paparella walked off the field with McCarthy and his Red Sox swarmed around him, of course, the decision stood.

Every club with the exception of Washington and Boston enjoyed an off-day yesterday. The clubs resented the action today, with the National League's Western clubs host to the east, and the American League's Eastern teams host to the west.

Yesterday's triumph enabled the Nats to deadlock the Philadelphia Athletics for fourth place in the American League. They trail the front-running Yankees by three games. The seventh place Sox are now five games off the pace.

Mickey Haefner pitched an eight-hitter for his third triumph. He came with a whisker of losing, though. With one out in the ninth and the Red Sox needing one run to tie, O'Brien singled. Billy Hitchcock flied out, but Birdie Tebbetts singled and Stringer ran for him. Mole battled for losing Pitcher Jack Kramer and singled to right.

trict but politicians everywhere were surprised when young Roosevelt discovered, or someone discovered for him, that a candidate for a congressional seat need not reside within the district. In England, yes. But nobody had discovered that in this country.

Among those who have endorsed young F. D. R.'s candidacy is Benjamin Pross, the old jail-bird, swindler, racketeer and bankrupt. ## Around the Arkansas Sports Loop

By CARL BELL
Fayetteville, May 17 — (AP) — It didn't make any difference in the team standings, but the finish judges made a mistake in the 220-yard dash finals of the Southwest Conference track and field meet here.

Pictures snapped by two photographers show Charley Parker of Texas and Bill Napier of Texas A. and M. reaching the tape together. Parker apparently won by the narrowest of margins, but Napier at least was second — definitely — with three other runners well behind.

The judges gave Parker first, all right, but said Napier was fourth. According to the pictures, Stonie Cotton of Baylor, who was given second, finished third and Perry Samuels, Texas, awarded third place, was fourth. The judges and pictures agreed Red Brown of Rice brought up the rear.

Wonder why the big meets don't take a tip from horse racing and have a camera decide sprints.

Arkansas made a big hit as host to the track meet, the conference directors. The five new records at Fayetteville, the athletic facility committee and the athletic staff, believed to have been tested to the fine condition of the entertainment of the visiting coaches was tops.

The most cheerful looking football coaches on hand were Matty Bell and Rusty Russell of SMU (why not?) and little Harry Stiller of A. and M. (Why? "Poker faced as usual were Jess Neely of Rice and John Barnhill of Arkansas. Then there was Duke Meyer of TCU, who acts as though all is lost but gives you an impression he has an ace up his sleeve. And boyish Bob Woodruff of Baylor, dangling his legs from a picnic table and discussing playing experiences with the Tennessee exes on the Razorback staff. Texas' Blair Cherry and an A. & M. publicist were poking fun at each other. Just one big, happy family — until the throat-cutting begins in the fall.

Two of the Southwest's greatest hurdlers were spectators. Clyde Scott or Arkansas saw the Aggies' Bob Hall break in Friday's preliminaries the low-hurdle record he and Fred Wolcott, Rice, had held jointly. Wolcott missed the feat, for he didn't arrive until Saturday.

Arkansas' switch to the T formation in football won't be relished by Woodruff. He said the way he beat the Razorbacks last fall was by taking advantage of his knowledge of the Tennessee system then employed by Barnhill. Both learned it under Bob Neyland, and it seems there are some intricacies of the system that Tennessee men never change as long as they use the single wing.

There's talk of the Razorbacks participating in a football race next season on a trial basis. They haven't before because of travel problems. And Porker Coach Deke Brackett says his team next year will be stronger than the good one of this spring. Mel McGaha, star of last year's Razorback diamondbacks, is a regular outfielder. 22. Class AA col umber. Quite a jump.

Ross Pritchard, the fleet half back, may be counted out of the Razorbacks' plans for next football season. The shoulder injury he suffered in spring practice turned out to be more serious than first believed, and the doctors say it could be hurt again very easily. Even if he returns, some sideliners are wondering if he can stay ahead of the rapidly improving Tracy Scott, Clyde's "kid" brother.

Speaking of football, Texans here over the weekend referred to next December's SMU-Notre Dame game as for "the world's championship."

Seen in a privat confab: Elvin Geiser, the new North Little Rock high grid mentor, and the man he is replacing, Sam Cook. Discussing some of the conditions that led to Sam's departure, maybe?

Pinch Hitter Gives Atlanta 4-3 Victory

By The Associated Press
Pinch Hitter Charlie Waddall and little Gene Verble are the heroes of Atlanta Cracker fans to day.

Waddall hit a long single in the bottom of ninth to bring in the winning run in their game with the Little Rock Travelers last night. The game ended 4 to 3 in favor of the Crackers.

Verble, Cracker shortstop, brought in the rest of Atlanta's seventh, two runners scored on his hit, and he himself came home on a Trav error.

The victory put Atlanta back in first place, replacing the Birmingham Barons after a one-day stand. The Barons took a rest yesterday, as did the Memphis Chicks, solidly for the Southern Association cellar.

In other loop games, the Nashville Vols whipped the New Orleans Pelicans, 14-10, and the Chattanooga Lookouts nipped the Mobile Bears, 4 to 1.

Games tonight: Little Rock at Atlanta. Memphis at Birmingham. Chattanooga at Mobile. Nashville at New Orleans.

Mrs. S. B. Gee conducted a business meeting and installed the following officers for the next session:

Camp Pioneer, the long-term summer camp of the Cadette Council, Boy Scouts of America, will open on June 4, according to an announcement by H. W. Stilwell, Council Camping and Activities chairman. Six periods of one week will be held this summer; the date of the different periods are June 5-12, June 12-19, June 19-26, June 26-July 3, July 10-17, and July 17-24.

The camp will be under the direction of Gene Mullins and his staff composed of Jack Logan, C. L. "Pop" Gardner, and Arvil Hickman. These men will be assisted by a Junior Staff, composed of older, higher ranking scouts.

A full well-rounded program will be offered to all Scouts attending camp. Many activities, including campfires, swimming, handicraft, life saving, pioneering, archery, singing and games, will be held in all periods of the camp. The Rifle Range, under the direction of Jack Logan, will be open all during the camping season.

All meals will be well balanced and served in a pleasing manner in the central dining hall. A fine variety of candies, cookies and cold drinks will be sold in the canteen, and the Trading Post will be well stocked with T-shirts and handicraft supplies.

Reservations are being accepted at the Boy Scout Office, 306 Texas City Hall, Texarkana. All unit leaders are urged to send their camp reservations in as soon as possible, as the periods are filling up rapidly. Only 85 Scouts can attend camp in any one session, and reservations are accepted on a first come, first served basis. If further information concerning Camp Pioneer is desired, call the Boy Scout Office, 3-5972, Texarkana.

The annual cub scout olympics which was held at Hope High school last Saturday was perhaps the most successful in the three year history of the event here.

Bill Wray, camping and activities chairman for Hempstead District directed the program. He was assisted by Coach Lawrence Martin, Tommy Britt, Buddy Sutton and William Martin. Don chiefs Boyce Baker and Jerry O'Neal also helped to run off the events.

Ribbons were awarded to the following winners:

Boys' jump: first Rufus Herndon, 14 feet; 2nd, Hal Branch; 3rd, Jerry Fant.

High jump: first, Travis Pirtle; 2nd, Franklin McDowell.

She made a right hand turn from a left hand lane and promptly got hit by another auto. The driver got out and accosted her.

"Lady, why didn't you signal?" "I always turn here, stupid."

Wagon Parade Kicks Off Bond Drive

Independence, Mo., May 17 — (AP) — A covered wagon parade kicked off the nation's 1949 billion dollar opportunity bond drive to a successful start.

A throng of 40,000 watched 30 ox, mule, and horse-drawn prairie schooners roll along the streets of Independence, Mo., home town yesterday.

National dignitaries, including Secretary of the Treasury Snyder

Governors Earl Warren of California, Paul Dever of Massachusetts, Forrest Smith of Missouri, and Frank Carlson of Kansas, and radio and screen stars rode along in cars.

Army, navy and marine corps units participated. School children rode floats and boy scouts in Indian regalia trooped beside the wagons.

Overhead planes circled. And when the parade was over some 8,000 people jammed into nearby Kansas City's auditorium. There they heard Secretary Snyder introduce President Truman who addressed the nation from Washington, D. C.

Snyder announced Kansas City and the president's home country had already passed the $7,372,480 goal set for this area.

Today the wagons, replicas of the ox-drawn vehicles that set out from here 100 years ago in the California gold rush, were to be flown to 30 different cities to spark the Series E bond drive. The 1949 "gold rush" aims at a $1,040,000,000 goal by June 30.

It was Sunday morning. He slipped on his wife's robe and went downstairs to answer the doorbell. As he opened the door, the milkman kissed him. After giving due thought to this unusual occurrence, he came to the conclusion that the milkman's wife must have a similar robe.

A mole, unfed for 12 hours, will starve to death.
